Dear ACSF members

I am sharing ACS opportunities that maybe of your interest. As always, this information is provided by ACSF members or collected by myself.

Thank you

EXHIBITION *****

Frank Lloyd Wright at 150: Unpacking the Archive (at MoMA, NYC)

Let us acknowledge one of our ACSF members (LSU Professor) Michael Desmond for being the guest curator for an upcoming exhibition on Frank Lloyd Wright at the Museum of Modern Art in New York. The exhibition, Frank Lloyd Wright at 150: Unpacking the Archive, will be on display at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City, June 12-October 1, 2017. For more information, visit:

<https://www.moma.org/calendar/exhibitions/1660?locale=en>

This is a large exhibition celebrating the transferral of Wright's archives from the FLW Foundation in Arizona to Columbia's Avery Library a couple of years ago. This will make Wright materials so much more accessible for study. While there are a number of curators exploring new aspects of Wright's work in this exhibition, Professor Desmond's part highlights FLW's increasing use of circles and circular arcs toward the creation of an architectonics inclusive of the landscape in ways not yet fully explored. All about riding the wave of the perceptual moment that Dr. Desmond believes will resonate with the interests of our ACSF membership. Plus, of course, it's the MoMA after all!

Monastery of Bose

National Office for the Cultural Heritage of the Church - Italian Bishops' Conference

INHABIT – CELEBRATE - TRANSFORM

participative processes

between liturgy and architecture

Bose, Italy, 1-3 June 2017

A grammar for imagining and living the Church through its spaces and its architecture is the theme of the XVth International Liturgical Conference of Bose. It aims at bringing out the participative dimension of church and architectural experience, in an exchange between the commissioning party, architects, artists, and the Christian community.

In fact, it is not possible to imagine and create the spaces of a church without involving the persons and communities called to inhabit the places of the Church's life, in a profound synergy with the neighboring social and environmental setting.

Sacred Journeys: Pilgrimage and Religious Tourism

4th Global Conference

Beijing, P.R. China: 26-27 October 2017

Indiana University (IU) Gateway – Beijing, China

This conference is the fourth in the series on sacred journeys, with the first two held at Oxford University's Mansfield College and the third in Prague. As in previous gatherings, we will explore the practice of pilgrimage and religious tourism in global perspective from every conceivable angle, including nationalistic, economic and development aspects, the similarities and differences in the practice in Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, Christianity, Taoism, and other traditions, and secular pilgrimage. The impact of the internet and globalization, pilgrimage as protest, and pilgrimage and peace-building will also be considered, as will be the concept of the internal pilgrimage and the journey of self-discovery. The experiential, practical, historical, and psychological aspects of the sacred journey are central to our exploration, and we encourage all those seeking to participate to consider their work in this larger frame. From the perspective of religious tourism, we seek papers discussing both theory and practice, motivations, media and technology, religious tourism and identity, culture and heritage, religious tourism and well-being, the management of sacred sites, cultures as tourist products, tourism and commodification of culture, etc.

Deadline for participation submission: June 1, 2017
