Dear ACSF members

Two important items for your information about our organization.

First, we are announcing our next ACS 10 Symposium that will take place in Coral Gables and Miami (Florida) in June 7-10, 2018. The topic will be "Architecture & Displacement" and the symposium chairs are Nader Ardalan and Karla Britton. This meeting is sponsored by the University of Miami. More information will become available later in September/October. But please, put this event in your calendar. For more info, visit:

Second, and as most of you know, we had our ACS 9 meeting at Haystack (Deer Isle, ME). The symposium had over 50 attendees and presenters and the location was stunningly beautiful and design inspiring. Unlike other past symposia, ACS 9 offered a variety of hands-on workshops that offered attendees the chance to engage directly with the conference theme: Practice, Craft, Materials and Making. Keynotes by Lindsay Jones, Daniel Johnston, Bradford C. Grant and Annie Finch were truly memorable. All those that attended ACS 9 will concur that co-chairs Ben Jacks, Rebecca Krinke, and Mikesch Muecke did a fantastic job at hosting the Event. The remoteness and beauty of the place encouraged attendees to engage in meaningful conversations with each other and with nature, well beyond the established symposium curriculum. We'll remember the big fire gathering next to the sea in a cool night of Maine for a long time ...
